BACKGROUND (Includes description, background, and justification)

The Georgia Historic Preservation Act states that local Historic Preservation Commissions should have at least 3 members but doesn't set a maximum number. The City's appointed Historic Preservation Commission has 5 members, but many local HPC's have 7, and the Hogansville would like to do so also. This would enable the HPC to bring more talent and interested citizens to this committee. City Council would appoint these 2 additional members after recommendation from the Historic Preservation Commission.

STAFF RECOMMENDATION (Include possible options for consideration)

Amend the City's Historic Preservation Ordinance to enlarge the number of appointed members from 5 members to 7 members. The HPC will continue to bring recommendations to City Council as to who to appoint.
